

DR. ANN W. DAVIS

B I O

North Carolina

Dr. Ann W. Davis is a national leader in program design, content development and delivery of executive leadership development. Dr. Davis specializes in next generation personalized learning and one-to-one 24/7 mobile ubiquitous computing for PK-12 school districts. She is a strong community and social services professional skilled in school transformation through personalized learning with technology-infused curriculum, instruction, professional development and executive coaching; program evaluation, leadership development, data analysis, strategic planning, classroom walkthrough design & feedback, process analysis and alignment, curriculum development, grant writing, conflict negotiation, political climate navigation and change leadership. She is a retired Clinical Associate Professor in the Educational Leadership and Cultural Foundations Department at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Dr. Davis' background includes: Teacher, Assistant Principal, Principal, High School Turnaround Portfolio Manager, and Associate Superintendent. She is a researcher and well-published author. She has served as a Senior Program Associate for The Center of Excellence for Research, Teaching and Learning at Wake Forest University. She has vast experience in leadership development, data analysis, strategic planning, classroom walkthrough design & feedback, coaching and change management. Dr. Davis is nationally recognized as a past recipient of the North Carolina High School Principal of the Year award by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and North Carolina Principal and Assistant Principal Association (NCPAPA). She is author of the 1:1 digital implementation framework adapted by the USDOE Epic-Ed.

Dr. Davis represented the United States in a study tour of technology in education in Perth, Melbourne and Sydney Australia with the International Society for Technology in Education; served as a United States Delegate to Finland with the National Association of Secondary School Principals to study education excellence; and completed a study tour of global education and learning spaces in Hong Kong, China.